WHY DO I NEED A LASTING POWER OF ATTORNEY (LPA)?

If you lose mental capacity through illness (for example a stroke, dementia, or Alzheimer's disease), or an accident, and haven't created an LPA:

- You will no longer be able to choose who makes decisions and act for you (such as your spouse and children). You can only make your LPA while you still have mental capacity.
- A stranger appointed by the court such as a solicitor would end up making crucial decisions about you and your assets – where you will live, whether to accept medical treatment to keep you alive, what you eat and wear, and will control all your finances and your property.
- Your spouse, children or friends would have to apply to court to get permission to make decisions on your behalf and act for you – which is far more expensive and time-consuming than making an LPA and the court could refuse the application.

If you still have mental capacity, LPAs are a simple, inexpensive, and legally robust way of giving someone you trust the power to make decisions and act for you – either temporarily or long term should you lose capacity in the future.

To plan for this, you must create an LPA now whilst you still have mental capacity and so make things much easier for other people in your life.

Westminster Law are specialists in organising this.

THE MAINDEE FLIPPERS

by Paul Minton

The 1970s was a golden age of children's television, when parents could leave their kids in front of programmes like Blue Peter and John Craven's Newsround in the hope that something educational might seep into their young minds. One particular favourite of mine was Animal Magic, presented by Johnny Morris.

Each episode contained footage shot at Bristol Zoo, where exotic creatures would be given amusing voices by Morris, who also embodied the character of a zookeeper. It is only in recent years that I learned that he was born and raised in Newport, as detailed in his autobiography, There's Lovely. The young Morris was educated at Eveswell Junior School and Hatherleigh Road School thereafter, where his headmaster was none other than Fred Hando, the great Gwent writer and artist.

Animal Magic was first broadcast in 1962 and ran for more than two decades. Over the years, Morris was assisted by different co-hosts, although the only person I remember was a man with the Beatrix Potteresque name of Terry Nutkins. Morris and Nutkins were firm friends outside of the studio and indeed, when the older man passed away in 1999, a large share of his estate was bequeathed to his protege. In his youth, Nutkins had also been unofficially adopted by the author, Gavin Maxwell, whose book, Ring of Bright Water, about otters in the west of Scotland, was a bestseller. Besides his connection to Johnny Morris, however, there is something else that links Terry Nutkins to Newport. It has nothing to do with otters and everything to do with Maindee Pool.

Maindee Pool was an art deco-style swimming baths constructed in the late 1930s at a cost of nearly £40,000 (about £3.5 million in today's money). The baths incorporated a pair of pools: one for youngsters and beginners and another for everybody else. The larger of the two was 100 feet in length and around a thousand spectators could be accommodated amongst the sweeping arches that climbed to the ceiling. The upper windows were said to be capable of being opened 'by merely pressing a button' so that users could experience the effect of an open air pool. Promotional literature at the time of its launch quoted a 'man of international fame in the swimming world', who declared the baths to be superior even to those at Wembley.

In December 1983, Terry Nutkins visited the baths accompanied by two friends. These were a couple of bottlenose dolphins called Sooty and Clyde that he had recently acquired. When they first arrived on site, they were, according to one witness, conveyed through the foyer, up a set of steps, and into the main pool. The animals had been brought along to appear in a series of aquatic shows hosted by Nutkins.

Details of the Maindee performances are scant but there is photographic evidence depicting one dolphin balancing on its tail above the water, waiting for a fishy treat to be presented. Another picture shows a dolphin, mouth agape, inviting an assistant to scrub its teeth with a brush. Following their stint in Newport, Sooty and Clyde travelled to other venues before being purchased by Knowsley Safari Park, near Liverpool.

Times have, of course, changed a lot since then. The days of watching marine mammals perform in urban swimming pools are long gone, as is Terry Nutkins himself, who died in 2012.

Maindee Pool closed for good in 2005 and its condition has since deteriorated considerably, a situation that was not helped by arsonists, who struck twice in one night in 2007. Whilst the BBC paid for some of the clean up when the baths featured in scenes from the cult TV series, Being Human, it remains a semi-derelict shadow of its glorious past.

Rogerstone ROSES

Our Democracies

Democracy; government by the whole population, usually through elected representatives (The Oxford Dictionary).

It doesn't seem that long ago that I wrote about the Russian invasion of Ukraine and now, here we are again, sadly I feel that mankind does not learn from history but continues to make the same mistakes again and again. Today the world is a very unstable place, there are people suffering horrors we can only imagine, living lives of indescribable hardship. It now seems, at the time of writing this, that the countries in the middle east are descending into chaos. Ordinary folk being faced with the terrifying ordeals that we just watch on our screens. Their homes burn while we worry about the rising cost of petrol. Our country may seem on the surface to be failing on many accounts, health care, poor educational standards, pot holes litter etc, etc., but we should celebrate what we do have, democracy from which follows freedom of speech, free movement and a country where, in the main, people of all creeds and colours are welcome. This may be a rather glib idealistic view of the United Kingdom but there is much truth in it.

And what I hear you muttering has this got to do with W.I., well if I am truthful not much per se. The idea of celebrating what we have was initiated by this week's meeting, I got home and the news was on the television showing devastation to both Iran and American bases in the pro American middle eastern states, in Lebanon and in Israel. Easily forgotten, hopefully temporarily, is the situation in Ukraine and the total destruction of Gaza. All these people facing death and destruction on a daily basis. How terrible is the senseless loss of life.

I had come in from a very enjoyable W.I. meeting, an evening of fun and laughter, everyone interacting pleasantly with one another and it occurred to me then that these are the things we take for granted, maybe I should just say I, but I'm quite certain that if I were to ask my fellow members, their response would not be very different. How lucky we are that our group runs smoothly, the committee works hard to ensure our programme is varied and interesting, agreeing by consensus on different activities to ensure most members interests are touched on. Sometimes points are not agreed on but every committee member is allowed to voice their opinions and eventually the point will be voted on; and as they say, some you win some you loose but you accept the majority verdict and move to the next item on the agenda. Democracy at its very basic. Democracy, at all levels, is most definitely something we should laud.

I realise I have told you little of our recent programme, suffice to say its interesting and new members are always welcome. Details of our meetings can be found in our advert elsewhere in the directory.

Newport Bathroom Centre

NOT JUST BATHROOMS

Family-run business within Wales' largest furnishings store offers incredible savings on luxury items

Newport Bathroom Centre is renowned throughout South East Wales for offering a wide range of luxury bathroom items at very affordable prices, but what you may not know is that they also supply and fit not only bathrooms, but also kitchens, bedrooms, doors, and tiling and high quality engineered flooring for any other room of the home too.

The best thing about this service is that you get first-hand experience of what your new room will look and feel like, as your dream becomes a reality with a bespoke design and fitting service.

Director Dave Viggers

Director Dave Viggers has more than 30 years' experience in the installation of kitchens and bathrooms, using his extensive knowledge of working at a drawing office to formalise your ideas into real working plans.

Dave has full oversight of the project, fully costing the materials and labour from the outset, giving you piece of mind that everything is taken care of.

Dave told SW Directories: "The design process is simple, it just starts with a conversation to discuss styles and individual tastes. Working with a set budget, we can then look at the best suited materials for the job, then it's on to measure to work out an exact cost.

"You'll sit down with an experienced and talented designer who'll discuss your ideas in detail, noting your likes and dislikes, encompassing tiling, storage, accessories, and fittings.

"Whether modern, classic or specially commissioned, we ensure that your bathroom, kitchen or bedroom will look exactly how you want it while retaining practicality and function.

"When designs have been agreed and confirmed, customers will then receive a supply and fitting quotation based on the products and design chosen. These quotations will include a total cost including the products and the work involved in transforming your bathroom, kitchen or bedroom.

"We usually allow for two weeks as standard, but each installation varies depending on the work involved and will be discussed with you prior to confirmation of your installation date."

So, if you're looking for a high-level of quality service from a professional team who strive to get the very best for you and your budget, then simply pay a visit to Newport Bathroom Centre.

Swan RESCUE

Updates from Cold Knap Barry, and Cyfarthfa, Merthyr Tydfil

In our last article, composed at the end of January, we wrote about a swan rescued from Cold Knap with a peculiar malformation affecting its neck. As noted at the time, in care, he appeared to be flourishing, feeding well and attending well to feather care. Sadly, this improvement did not continue and over the space of a few days, Phoenix, as we had called him deteriorated at what became an alarming rate. With very great sadness we had to conclude, as we had never had to do in 40 years, the right thing to do was to have this poor beautiful long-suffering bird put to sleep, thus becoming another victim of Avian Influenza.

Two months ago, we reported that many entire families of cygnets had already dispersed leaving the way clear for the start of the new breeding season, the family on the lake at Cyfarthfa Castle at Merthyr was a clear exception with all seven cygnets still present and indeed, the adults appearing still to be very laid back. As we reported last time, one of the cygnets (a large male) was already seriously handicapped with a length of medium/heavy gauge fishing line around its upper right leg. It is no exaggeration to say that there was several attempts to catch this swan, and frequently in the most appalling weather conditions. Our victim became increasingly aware of what our game was. Early on, at long range with an extended swan hook, I caught him, only for him to rotate at the critical moment and escape. On the next occasion, with our ace man Mark in his kayak, we were forced to give up when it emerged that our one-legged swan was able to take off and fly the length of the lake not withstanding his disability. This attempt suggested the use of a powered craft was what was needed; this resulted in two massive exercises involving the Severn Area Rescue Association (SARA) who put in substantial resources twice over an extended number of hours, all to no avail, unable to launch a power boat safely at Cyfarthfa. A huge thank you is due to all who took part. During SARA's second visit, the adult cob became very active and all the cygnets had an enormous amount of flying practice, cutting a long story short, our swan ended up on the River Taff, right in the middle of Merthyr.

Enter James, an enthusiastic local envoy for wildlife welfare who called to say confidently he could catch the swan, which he did, absolutely brilliantly, stalking the bird with great stealth while carrying a large net on the end of a longish pole. The story continues with a very uncertain outcome resulting from the severe damage caused by the line cutting into the flesh resulting in damage to ligaments and tendons.

A sample of weed retrieved from Cyfarthfa during first SARA visit; two different 'hanks' of line each carrying a heavy weight and a hook

James approaching/stalking the swan below Avenue de Clichy

The damage, a result of which the swan still has no use of the leg

HIGHLIGHTED BOOKING IS ESSENTIAL DUE TO SPACE LIMITATIONS

Walking Through History on Twmbarlwm

This is probably the same view medieval pilgrims would have had of Twmbarlwm as they left Llanderfel on their way to to the shrine of the Virgin Mary at Penrhys, Rhondda.

Summer is just around the corner and my mind is turning once more to getting back out onto our hillsides exploring the bounteous wildlife and nature, magnificent scenery and in our area we are very lucky to be surrounded by sites of historical interest.

This year I hope the society will be able to organise some walks and talks that will fulfill all three of those criteria and we appeal to anyone with suggestions for suitable walks – or better still to any experts who can help lead an interesting walk for us.

Over the years walks and talks have included the Lost Farmsteads of Mynydd Maen, the Legend of Pwll Tra, Iron Age Archaeology and one I particularly remember – the Chapel of Llanderfel. I focus on this one, not only because it's a fascinating story but also because in a couple of days time it's the Feast of St Derfel (5th April). I bet not many readers know this location, yet it's an easy walk across the ridgeway from Twmbarlwm's carpark.

The ruins of Llanderfel lie in a field above Henllys (on private land, so permission is neded to visit it) and the remains of an L-shaped building can clearly be seen - although much of the stone walls have disappeared or re-purposed over the years.

It was a site of pilgrimage in medieval times and lies on an ancient pilgrim route from Llantarnam Abbey to Penrhys in the Rhondda Valley (this is partly the reason we do our traditional Good Friday walk).

Derfel, born c. 466, was the son of Hywel, king of Brittany, according to legend, he fought for King Arthur at the Battle of Camlan.

Being one of only seven warriors who survived the battle, it is said the experience of the bloodshed turned him to religion and he became a hermit, founding two churches, one in Gwynedd, north Wales, the other here above Llantarnam. He later became Abbot of Ynys Enlli (Bardsey) where he died (c.560) and is buried.

Sculpture of St Derfel, by David Lloyd, at the Thornhill Community Centre, Cwmbran

The ruins of Llanderfel above Llantarnam with magnificent views over Cwmbran and beyond

There was a large wooden statue of him at Llandderfel (Gwynedd), depicting him as a warrior astride a horse, to which there was a legend attached that if it was set alight, it would "…burn down a forest".

Thus it came to pass, when in the 16th century the much lauded statue was removed by order of Thomas Cromwell after John Forest, a Catholic priest, refused to accept King Henry VIII as the supreme head of the Church of England.

This led to the macabre coincidence, intentional or otherwise, when the statue was used as firewood to burn to death the recalcitrant priest, John Forest, thus fulfilling the prophecy.

St. Derfel's story goes a lot deeper and like much of Welsh legend and history there are many more locations that claim dubious links to historical figures but here at OUR Llanderfel the pilgrim route and placename alone gives us sound credibility. So please watch our website for information on this walk I'm sure we will convince you of Derfel's historical significance.

Gwerinwyr Gwent Diary

With the disappointment of only one booking in the second half of 2025, we were eagerly awaiting our fairly busy start to 2026. This began on Saturday 21st February when we travelled to the United Reformed Church in Hereford, to be part of a fundraising concert on behalf of Motor Neuron Disease. A member of the congregation had passed away from this dreadful disease and as he was Welsh, the organisers (members of GG and yes, they travel all the way to Bassaleg every week to practice), thought it would be a fitting memorial to hold a Welsh themed concert, with all donations going to MND.

The concert consisted of harpist Bronwen Wilkins, dance displays from GG, plus a trio of male singers from a railway choir and thus nicknamed The Three Tenders. We each gave two performances with a break in the middle for refreshments, including Bara Brith, Welsh cakes and Glamorgan sausages. The church was packed, making the evening a great success, raising over £1,200 for MND.

The following Saturday morning (28th), we made a return visit to Foxhunters Care Home in Llanfoist, Abergavenny to celebrate St David's Day with the residents. We performed a selection of dances, our musicians played some Welsh tunes, and Barbara Griffiths put together a programme of Welsh culture to get the audience participating. From Abergavenny, we drove down to Tredegar House in Newport, where the National Trust (with funding from the Welsh government), had organised a series of events over the St David's Day weekend. As the weather was dry, we danced outside in the courtyard, but although sunny, it was pretty cold...especially for our poor musicians. We were back again on Sunday afternoon where this time we got to dance inside the house in the large entrance hall. That was well received, with a few visitors joining in with our final easy dance.

On Wednesday 4th March we were invited to Merthyr Tydfil College to present some sessions on Welsh culture to the students. Once again, we relied heavily on Barbara Griffiths to come up with the programme. It was a full and tiring day with two sessions before lunch and one long one after. We displayed dances and got some students and lecturers to join in (after a bit of persuasion), while, in between these, Barbara ran through the language, symbols, unique things about Wales, famous people etc, also getting the audiences to join in by calling things out. It seemed to go down very well and certainly felt worthwhile.

Gwerinwyr Gwent is always seeking new members, and beginners or experienced dancers/musicians are very welcome. Practice night is Thursday 8-10pm at the Graig Community Hall (opposite the Ruperra PH). For more details visit our website www.gwerinwyrgwent.org.uk, or ring 01495 271953.

Newport Bathroom Centre

PEACE OF MIND

When getting in and out of a standard bath becomes a worry, these quality products offer a solution.

Happy Customers Malcolm & Carol Warren

The Louisiana Access Walk In Bath

The latest addition to Newport Bathroom Centre's already extensive catalogue of innovative products now includes Access walk-in baths - a British company based in the Black Country, who specialises in making bathing more than a possibility, they make it a pleasure, with elegant designs to suit any bathroom.

Newport Bathroom Centre Director, Dave Viggers, told us: "We understand you want to bathe with confidence, so the experience is relaxing and enjoyable. This is why every bath has been carefully designed to include multiple safety features without compromising looks. Combine this with outstanding design and affordability, you have a walk-in bathing solution that is unbeatable."

Here is what Carol Warren, who purchased a 'Louisiana' style walk-in bath from Newport Bathroom Centre had to say:

What made you decide to get rid of your old bath for a walk-in bath?
As we (my husband and I) got older, mobility became more of an issue, especially after falling and breaking my ankle. Getting in and out of a regular bath became a serious issue, due having to put one's entire weight on my weaker ankle.

How long did it take to fit?
Fitting took just under a week, which also included waiting for the electrician and replacing the floor covering. It would've probably been sooner, as the work was split over a weekend.

Finally, would you recommend an Access Walk-in Bath and why?
David and his team were really good with sound advice and were able to maintain use of the original bathroom, whilst the new one was being fitted.

Everything was left clean and tidy at the end of the working day.

Where suggestions were made in order to get a good looking bathroom there was no pressure to make the changes, but due to the experience of David and his team we ended up with something that was far better than we could have put together.

David also kept in touch throughout the whole experience and followed up with phone calls to make sure that there were no problems and we were satisfied with everything - Newport Bathroom Centre comes highly recommended in our eyes.

If you are interested in this Louisiana bath or any of the nine other options available, please get in touch with one of Newport Bathroom Centre's experts using the details below:

Line Dancing Group

Members of Newport u3a's Line Dancing Group meet twice a month to experience its 'boot-scootin'-rootin'-tootin' rhythms.

The Leader of the Brownies and Girl Guides at Maindee asked if our Line Dancing Group could help the girls gain their Dancing Badges by teaching them two Line Dances. We were delighted to help as dancing is an incredible way for children and adults to express themselves. Also, for older people it helps them to stay active and learn new skills, whilst improving coordination and balance. The girls have to learn three different types of dance to gain the badge, so for our part we got them laughing and dancing on their way to attain them.

Newport u3a runs 40 more active, leisure and cultural groups for the retired at the Dolman Theatre Wednesday to Friday at 9:45-15:00 during term time. LEARN, LAUGH, LIVE is our motto, so if you would like more of that in your retirement come and try us out free of charge for two weeks.

Hardy Plant Society

The HPS Monmouthshire group is for people who love plants and gardening and enjoy sharing their enthusiasm with other like-minded people.

Non-members are very welcome to come along. Entry is £4 for members, non-members £6. The meetings always take place at Little Mill village hall NP4 0HE on the second Saturday of each month from September to May with the doors open at 2pm and the talks begin at 2.30pm. The group organises garden visits in the summer, discussions, dinners, plant sales and more throughout the year. Before the speaker, there's time to talk to fellow members, enjoy refreshments and perhaps buy some plants.

On May 9th at the hall in Little Mill, we bring you "Grass Consciousness" a talk by Roger Lloyd. Grasses are everywhere in modern garden design. This talk will cover the advantages of using grasses, how they are incorporated in garden design, which grass in which location, their care and maintenance, companion planting and a list of favourites, which will be provided as a handout. Entry is £4 for members, non-members £6.

The new programme for 2026/27 will be available from the local HPS Monmouthshire group: hpsmonmouthshire.co.uk

Friday 8th 6pm – 9pm
Street Food Friday returns with vibrant music from Jamila Music Jam accompanied by a bar and selection of street food. The café will serve soft drinks and snacks too. We would rather people didn't bring their own food and drink this year. Too many disposables were left last year and we need our traders to continue to support these community events. Music and ambience free. Come along for a chilled evening.

Sunday 17th 11am – 4pm
Another opportunity to buy those artisan bakes, arts and crafts and gifts.

Monday 25th 2.00pm

Revisiting

The History of Glasllwch Crescent

Glasllwch Crescent stretches from its junction with Glasllwch Lane and its junction with High Cross Lane, it has quite a history with regards to house addresses. For many years the houses had no numbers and in those days was probably a real test for the postman!

Eventually, post codes were introduced as NPT then NP1 to NP9 and eventually expanded to NP10, NP20 etc. Later numbers were added and subsequently revised to minimise confusion.

Prior to 1974, the boundary between Newport City Council and Magor & St. Mellons Rural District Council was the middle of Western Avenue. Now with Rogerstone being part of Newport the boundary is the M4 motorway. So Glasllwch Crescent was in both council areas.

In the early 1930s James (Jim) Morgan, well known for being a founder member of Rogerstone Band, lived on the north side of Glasllwch Crescent in a house called Cranfield. Having a young baby, he became concerned living there after a milk cart ran away down the hill and crashed through the house hedge. As a result of this he moved to Ifor Hael Road in The Uplands Rogerstone. Little did he know the consequences of this move and what he was saving the family from!

On May 31st, 1941, the Luftwaffe (The German Airforce) dropped a 500lb bomb on Glasllwch Crescent demolishing five houses with eight fatalities. The list of fatalities, their ages and house names were as follows:

Mary Glass, age 63, house name – Pambu
Ernest Henney, (an Air Raid Warden), age 63, house name - Little Dean
Ruth Huxter, age 56, house name – Tottenham
William Edward Huxter, age 55, house name – Tottenham
Ruth Lillian Huxter, age 30, house name – Tottenham
Alfred Ivins, age 58 house name – Glenside
Richard Radcliffe, age 69, house name – Swinburne
Lucy Radcliffe, (died in hospital June 2nd), age 36, house name - Swinburne

As well as the fatalities and destroyed houses there were many houses with blast damage even as far away as High Cross Lane. In those days there were only fields behind the houses with no further houses in the way to deflect any blast. Joan Dimmock reports "There were many lucky escapes from that raid, including a couple living in High Cross Lane," she said, "When the sirens went off, they remained in bed, but the blast destroyed their roof and windows and blew them out through the roof to land in the adjacent field. The only injury was to the husband, who suffered a broken shoulder." Also, Joan said “all that was left of her house were the bare bones, no roof and no windows”, this would be the case with most of the houses within the diameter of the blast. Joan reports that her father was trying to get back from the dining room to the kitchen where his family were but had to force doors because the frames were warped and this in a house that wasn’t hit!

There were no air raid shelters in most of the houses but there was one in the Huxter’s House, ‘Tottenham’ which took a direct hit and sadly killed all. Ruth Lillian Huxters brother was serving in the forces at the time and he returned to no house and no family.

The two photographs opposite show the same area of Glasllwch Cresent from the air

Taken less than five years apart, in the first photograph, the five houses were demolished by the bomb can be seen. These were originally left as they were for the building of a by-pass, which never came but was then used as part of the route for the M4.

From the two photographs it can be seen that a total of 13 more houses were demolished after compulsory purchase, seven on the north upper side and six on the south lower side. For a modern reference point the former St Anne’s church can be seen top left.

This M4 junction is one of the rare types seen in the UK road network where it is accessed in the opposite direction of travel and looping round to the direction of travel. This was due to the congestion of housing in the area.

All another part of the rich history of Rogerstone.,

RIVERS IN SOUTH WALES

River Afon Lwyd

Afon Lwyd is a 13-mile long river which flows from its source northwest of Blaenavon, through the Garn Lakes, pass the Big Pit, Llanfrechfa and Cwmbran Boating Lake, Ponthir before flowing into the River Usk just passed the bridge over part of the Twenty-Ten Golf Course.

In the 18th and 19th centuries, the river powered forges and waterwheels supporting local industry, especially around Pontymoile and Ponthir.

The river was severely affected by pollution from industry, mine discharge and fly tipping, but during the 1980s efforts were made to improve water quality and improve fish stocks. To aid this, the Environment Agency Wales built a fish ladder at Pontymoile in 2010 enabling fish to ascend past the weir there.

Afon Lwyd Trail

The Afon Lwyd Trail is a shared-use 16-mile path running from Blaenavon Ironworks in the north via Pontypool to Cwmbran in the south. The path initially follows the Monmouthshire and Brecon Canal followed by a section on the former Pontypool to Blaenavon railway. The trail incorporates two National Cycle Network routes: 49 and 492.

Big Pit

Boating Lake at Cwmbran

Lake overflow into the river

The village of Ponthir means ‘long bridge’ and it probably comes from the river crossing that was rebuilt around 1800. The river has always been an important part of this community's identity and purpose.

Historically, the river has also been known as the ‘Torfaen’ meaning 'breaker of stones', which gives some indication of the force of the river during surges. Although this name is no longer in use for the river, the name is used to the wider area, now known as Torfaen.

We have visited many of the local places at various times over the past few years but have never realised they were all along the same river!

A Mid-Year Financial Check-In:

Are You Still on Track?

As we move through the year, it's a natural point to pause and reflect. The pace of everyday life often means finances are something we 'set and forget'. However, a simple mid-year check-in can make a meaningful difference.

Start by revisiting your overall financial plan. Have there been any changes in your circumstances? A new job, family developments, or shifts in your goals can all impact the direction you should be heading.

Next, look at your savings and investments. Markets naturally rise and fall, but what matters most is whether your portfolio still aligns with your long-term objectives and your attitude to risk as well as your capacity for loss. Small adjustments at the right time can help keep everything on course.

It's also worth reviewing your pensions. With retirement potentially spanning decades, ensuring your plans remain appropriate and that contributions are on track is key to building confidence for the future.

Protection is another area often overlooked. Life cover, income protection or critical illness cover can provide valuable reassurance, particularly if your circumstances have changed over the past year.

Finally, don't forget about allowances and planning opportunities. Making the most of tax-efficient wrappers such as ISAs or pensions can enhance long-term outcomes, but these are often best considered before the year slips away.

A financial plan should evolve with you. Taking a little time now to review where you are can help ensure you remain on track for where you want to be.

At Kymin Financial Planners, we help individuals and families gain clarity and confidence in their financial future. For over 30 years, we've supported local clients with pensions, investments, inheritance tax planning and long-term financial strategies. Our approach is personal, considered and built entirely around what matters most to you.

If you would like a fresh perspective on your financial position, we would be delighted to help.
